

COOPI PRESENCE IN THE COUNTRY

COOPI has been present in Lebanon since 2013, working alongside Syrian refugees and their host communities. Lebanon stands as the country hosting the highest number of refugees in proportion to its population. This influx, resulting from the enduring Syrian crisis, has placed substantial strain on Lebanese authorities in delivering basic services, particularly to the most vulnerable segments of the population.

In August 2020, COOPI, in partnership with Lebanese NGOs and local communities, was among the first organisations to assist the victims of the terrible explosion that hit Beirut by distributing hot meals and food rations and supporting traders to restart their businesses destroyed or damaged by the explosion. COOPI also launched a development project in the north of the country to set up - together with the municipalities involved - a sustainable municipal solid waste collection programme.

In addition, COOPI focused on child protection and education, improved sanitation and cash-for-work projects.

COOPI IN LEBANON TODAY

In Lebanon, COOPI adopts a multi-sectoral and integrated approach with interventions primarily in the fields of child protection, education, livelihoods, and water, sanitation and hygiene (WASH). In response to the severe economic crisis, COOPI has implemented several Cash for Work initiatives in the Akkar Governorate, and Beirut/Mount Lebanon, creating job opportunities for vulnerable Syrian and Lebanese households. These initiatives are helping municipalities conduct essential work to prepare for winter, ensuring roads remain clean, drainage systems are unblocked, and other vital infrastructure is maintained. Under its WASH program, COOPI is implementing a multi-year initiative to support solid waste collection and management systems in 15 villages in the Akkar region of northern Lebanon. In the field of Education, COOPI is launching programs in Tripoli and Akkar to support children's education through home-based assistance. To further enhance learning environments, COOPI will rehabilitate 5 schools, ensuring safer and better-equipped facilities for students. In September 2024, COOPI, in partnership with UNRWA, responded to the emergency in Lebanon caused by the war. Together, they provided essential food items that were used to prepare hot meals, ensuring vital support for affected beneficiaries during this critical time.

MAIN AREAS OF INTERVENTION

WATER AND SANITATION

In Lebanon in the field of WASH, COOPI works at community level, primarily through projects for integrated and sustainable municipal solid waste management.

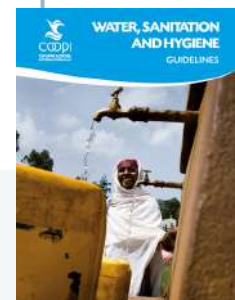

Solid waste management presents several critical issues in Lebanon, mainly due to the proliferation of hundreds of open dumps. The district of Akkar is one of the most affected areas – here the high influx of Syrian refugees, combined with the precarious living conditions of the local population, puts a strain on the local authorities who are in charge of managing this basic service. In this context, COOPI leads a multi-year project designed to regulate the production and management of solid waste in the district, carried out in partnership with Local Authorities, NGOs and the private sector. The participatory approach of the project actively involves the Union of Municipalities in the planning and implementation of activities, invests in the recycling and rehabilitation of illegal dumps and includes actions to raise awareness among the local population for proper personal waste management.
